

03/10/2017

The high level delegation from Chelsea and Westminster Hospital NHS foundation Trust, London, UK visited King George's Medical University, Lucknow today.

It included Dr Gary Davies, Clinical Director, Mr Robert Hodgkiss, Chief Operating officer, Mr Keith Loveridge, Director of Human Resources and Dr Shashank Patil, Consultant in the Department of Emergency Medicine of Chelsea and Westminster Hospital NHS foundation Trust, United Kingdom.

They met Honble Vice Chancellor Prof MLB Bhatt and Prof Vinita Das Dean, Medical and discussed areas of mutual cooperation between King George's Medical University and Chelsea and Westminster hospital NHS foundation Trust, London. Honble Vice chancellor stressed upon the need for cooperation in Emergency Medicine, Obstetrics & Gynaecology and other specialities.

During their visit to trauma centre they were apprised by Prof Haider Abbas, Head, Department of Emergency Medicine about the facilities available in the department of emergency medicine in this prestigious 4000 bedded, King George's Medical University, Lucknow.

It was discussed to cooperate in areas of teaching, training, research and MTI scheme. Medical Training Initiative (MTI) is a scheme launched by NHS to provide hand-on training to International medical graduates in UK hospitals.

The Chelsea and Westminster Hospital NHS foundation Trust, London, UK will facilitate the implementation of MTI Scheme after candidates are shortlisted by KGMU authorities, which includes Royal College sponsorship, General Medical Council registration, professional indemnity and airfare among others.